Publicly, Epic is not commenting. IGN reports they, "reached out to Epic for comment but Epic says it does not comment on rumors or leaks"

We are continuing to investigate the issue. We do not have root cause yet, so we cannot answer the second bullet just yet.

Adding Oliver as well. Engineering should have an update for us today. Paul Turner and team have all the details and timeline from the developer side to help assess what happened.

We've just received the following message from Epic. App Store and Developer Relations are in lock step and have not provided any update verbally or otherwise since this morning.

Hello,

Given that we appear to have cleared any other possible leaking images/videos from App Store Connect, it would be great to talk about the next steps.

We have suffered a major blow to the unveiling of our next season. There were concerns about a leak coming from Apple in the lead up to the season, and those fears ended up being substantiated. The media damage alone is significant.

- What is Apple willing to do as a make good?
- How can this can be avoided in the future?

Until we know what happened,
we should not speculate with them.

Stay tuned.
